HELP! FOR THE TENNESSEE RESEARCHER

Continued from Vol. IV, No. 1, January, 1972, and submitted by Mrs. Dollye McAlister Elliott, 8323 Sunbury Dr8ve, St. Louis, Missouri 63136, in hopes that her article will be of help to members of this Society.

INTER-LIBRARY LOAN

We see there is a great deal of information available for anyone who may go to Nashville, but what can one find from the Tennessee State Library and Archives if one hasn't the time to make the trip to Nashville: Your great help will come through duplicate copies of books at the Library which are available on inter-library loan. Here's how:

Consult your local librarian and request that he or she write to the Tennessee State Library and Archives, Library Division, Capital Hill, Nashville, and obtain books for you on inter-library loan. The only cost assessed by the State Library is the postage, both ways. Ordinarily, a local librarian does not like to be responsible for more than two or three State Library books at a time for one individual, but request one or two extra books in case one of the others you want is not available when your request comes into the Library at Nashville. From time to time, the quarterly hopes to print a portion of the list of books available from the State Library, by counties. However, the Library will send a copy of the list of books available on inter-library loan to anyone requesting it. A copy of that brochure would be a great help if kept in the local library for the use of all local researchers. We should show our appreciation for this inter-library service by taking good care of the books and films, not marking on them, and by returning them promptly. Ordinarily, the books may be kept for a period of two weeks. The state Library will need the title, author, and volume number, if any.

The Tennessee State Library has books for inter-library loan on almost every one of the Tennessee counties and some general histories of the state which may supply clues. In any event, one should read at least a condensed history of any state in which researching is being done. Each state has its own "pattern of migration"; in Tennessee, this was, generally, from Washington District of North Carolina (later Washington County, Tennessee) to the neighboring eastern counties later called Greene, Sullivan, Hawkins, etc., and into southeast Kentucky. Many families found later in southern Kentucky will first be found in the tax lists of Washington County, Tennessee. The way these pioneers made their way to Tennessee was: (1) down from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and other northeastern states, along the Shenandoah Valley in western Virginia, which acted as a highway and was heavily traveled, right into the southwestern "corner" of Virginia. Quite often the settlers lingered here a few months or so, then through the gap between the Cumberland Mountains and the Smokies (this is not the Cumberland Gap) in southwest Virginia and northeastern Tennessee, into the "Holston country" of Tennessee. (2) The route of the North Carolinians was usually up the western part of that state into the same southwestern counties at the tip of Virginia, and on into the Holston country of Tennessee. Those settlers coming from eastern Virginia and eastern North Carolina followed the main roads or Indian Warpaths across their states to this same portion of southwest Virginia and through the gap of the Cumberland Mountains and the Smokies. There were other passes south of this gap, but the Cherokees lived south of Holston along the Tennessee River and its tributaries around present-day Knoxville and Chattanooga and, also, the passes through the Smokies here were steeper and more difficult for settlers accompanied by families.

Why is such information of value to the family researcher? Because many families did not make the great move all the way from, say, Pennsylvania directly into Tennessee Country in one move. Quite often, they put down awhile in counties along the route - sometimes for a few months, sometimes for a year or more. Consequently, marriage and death records not found in their original home county nor in their ultimate home county may be found by checking counties along the route of their migration.

A tip in use by researchers: families seldom migrated alone. Usually, they talked their neighbors, friends, and kinsmen into making the move with them. It was not difficult: the cause of their removing to another area usually caused other families, also, to move. Thus, you will find several families together, for example the Mulkeys, Ellises, Helms in Delaware, later in North Carolina, later in Tennessee, then later in Kentucky. Some members drop along the wayside, but the main bodies of the families stay together; and, when some members of a family do drop along the wayside and settle, you will usually find that some members of one of the other families with them will also stay behind. So, trace the groups of people wherever possible or in doubt about which, say, Smith or Hill or Jones might be your line. The families which migrated together almost always inter-married, if they were not kin to begin with.

The following is a list of books available on inter-library loan. Those books on microfilm have the word "film" following the description.

The friends and acquaintances of Mr. John C. Elliott are informed that the funeral of his wife, ALCY, Will take place from his residence, on Bennett Street, this (Wednesday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial at Antioch, near Biardstown. Services by Jas. M. Biard. Paris, Texas, July 15th, 1884.
(Alcy J. Bills Elliott was daughter of Dr. Daniel G. Bills, Lewisburg, Tenn.)

OBITUARY: Christian Messenger, Wednesday, July 24, 1889.

IN MEMORIAM.

John C. Elliott was born in Marshall county, Tenn., Jan. 24th, 1827. Married to Alcy J. Bills, daughter of Dr. A. G. Bills, deceased, of Lewisburg, Tenn., Aug. 6th 1846. On May 25th, 1889, his soul was wafted back to God, who gave it, and all that was mortal of John C. Elliott was deposited by the side of the dust of his noble and true Christian wife, (who died July 16th, 1884,) in the old graveyard at Biardstown, Lamar county, Texas. Most of his life was spent in and around Lewisburg, Tenn., and he never tired of talking of the noble good people and old soldiers of the cross, who with him enlisted early in the ranks of the Reformation. For fifteen years he had lived in Lamar Co., Texas, and while he loved the home of his adoption, he always had a yearning for the old home.

HART FAMILY RECORD

Contributed to FAMILY FINDINGS by Mrs. O. L. Spencer, Rt. #3, Jackson, Tenn. During the Civil War, the Hart family was living in the Hart's Bridge Community of Madison County, Tennessee. The Union soldiers who occupied this area burned the Hart home, and Elizabeth Hunt Hart, great-grandmother of Mrs. Spencer, saved this Family Record by tearing it from the family Bible when her home was set on fire. This old torn family record is now in the possession of Mrs. Spencer.

He loved the Advocate, was a constant reader of it for many years. He knew its editors personally and loved them devotedly for their fidelity to the cause he loved above all else.....

For me to say that John C. Elliott was for almost his entire life time a true Christian, only voices what all who have ever known him know to be true; then what higher tribute can we pay - what more can we say? To my mind no higher honor to morals belongs. We have no conception of anything higher. A Christian! That embraces everything good, grand, high, noble and sublime. John C. Elliott was a true follower of Christ. Oh, could I have it said of me, when I shall have finished my course here on earth, truthfully, as I have said of John C. Elliott, - he was a Christian. What more could I ask? What more could I expect? My nature is so different to his, I am so resentful, so impetuous and my ambitious nature is so hard to control. May God help us all to be resigned to his will and to control our sinful natures is our prayer.

Fraternally, JAMES A. ELLIOTT

DOCTOR R. H. WYNNE, HAVING been informed, by several of his friends, that a report relative to his charges, and materially to his prejudice, has been, and is still circulating through the country, by his enemies; he has therefore, in justice to himself, and in confutation of the report, tho't proper to make this publication. -- There was an established price set by the Physicians of this place to govern us in our charges, and I have not varied from it. But in future, that nothing may or can be said my charges shall be per mile only, twenty-five cents, for going and coming, included, in the day, and fifty cents, at night--only half the original price: all other charges proportionately low. I should not have made this publication, but for the satisfaction of my friends and the information of strangers. Jackson, August 14. -- 6t

ANCESTRALLY SPEAKIN'

JAMES SMITH of HARDEMAN CO., TENN.

Written and submitted to FAMILY FINDINGS by Mr. Don Brown, 2053 Berdan Ave., Toledo, Ohio 43613.

James SMITH was born in Virginia, probably about 1788. The names of his parents aren't known, and it isn't known when he left Virginia. He was somewhere in Tennessee by the mid-1820's. He and his wife, Elizabeth, possibly went to Tennessee from Kentucky, as it appears that their oldest child might have been born in Kentucky. Elizabeth, whose maiden name is unknown, was born about 1790 in either North Carolina or in Virginia.

James and Elizabeth were the parents of at least six children: Mary Ann, born about 1823, who was married to West W. WIGGINS in July, 1829, and who apparently died in Hardeman County in the 1860's; Nancy L., born about 1824, who was first married to James K. HILL on May 13, 1840, and after his death to John JACKSON on August 11, 1851; James and William, who were twins, born in March 1825; Elizabeth, born about 1829, who was married to James Thomas (Tom) YOUNG on September 10, 1849; and Sarah A., born about 1831, who was married to Thomas G. HILL on February 8, 1848.

James, Jr., was married to Nancy Catherine MARSH, daughter of Mumford S. MARSH and Caroline JONES, on September 9, 1851, and they became the parents of two daughters before James' death: Mary Caroline, born about 1852, who was married to James H. HILL and moved to Arkansas; and Florence Elizabeth, born about 1854, who was married to James M. YOUNG. James SMITH, Jr., died in November or December, 1858, and a third daughter was born after his death: James Ann (Jimmie), born on February 26, 1859, who was married to Benjamin F. MURDAUGH.

William, the other twin, was first married to Elizabeth WEBB on September 24, 1846, and before her death on October 14, 1855, they became the parents of Sarah F., born in 1847, who was married to Starling Frank NUCKOLLS; James Madison, born about 1848, who was married to Dolly PIRTLE; and a son probably named Thomas, born about 1849, who died in 1855. William SMITH and Louisa A. MARSH, daughter of Mumford S. MARSH and Caroline JONES, were married on January 31, 1856, and they became the parents of one son: William Tilman, born in 1863, who was married to Laura BRADFORD. William (Bill) SMITH died in Hardeman County on January 15, 1908.

James SMITH, Sr., died in Hardeman County about 1840. His widow was married to Lemuel POYNER on November 15, 1840, and she died sometime during the 1850's. James SMITH is surely buried in Hardeman County, but no tombstone has been found there for him or for Elizabeth. He left an estate of 221 and three-fourths acres of land, apparently situated north of the Hatchie River in the vicinity of Shandy.
